

GREATER THAN EVER

Before are the values THE

MODEL

is giving this Fall in Men's Fine Suits and Overcoats. We want every man in this State to see the grand line of Cassimere, Worsted, Cheviot, Corkscrew, Wide Wale and Triot Suits we are giving at $15, $18, $20, $25 and $30. To the men who are usually so hard to fit—the fat men and the long, slim men, we extend a special invitation to call and see how carefully we have provided for your needs. WE CAN FIT YOU and are sure to please you.

We are daily receiving new things in Fall Overcoats. The demand for these essential garments has never been so great as this season.

SPECIAL SALE

—OF—

SILK UMBRELLAS

To-morrow we place on sale 200 Windsor Silk Umbrellas, paragon frame, elegant gold and silver handles, silk covers, at only

$3.63

Every Umbrella warranted for one year. They would be a great bargain at $5 and $6.

HATS! HATS!

We do the leading Hat business of this city, simply because we give far better value than any other hatter in Indianapolis. Our great leader, our

$2.50

Fur Stiff Hat, equals any $3 or $3.50 Hat from any other house.

ROTHSCHILD, HAYS &amp; CO., PROPRIETORS.

COAL IS KING

and can always be relied upon. It will be here in all its glory when NATURAL GAS VANISHES. Buy your supply of the best grades.

PURE GENUINE

JACKSON COAL

GAS HOUSE

CRUSHED COKE,

OLD TELL

Anthracite Coal.

Our Offices are convenient to all parts.

Northeast: 298 Christian ave. South End: 201 S. Delaware st. Northwest: 450 N. Mississippi.

CENTRAL LOCATIONS:

11 North Pennsylvania St. and 2 East Washington St.

A. B. MEYER &amp; CO

Subscribe for the Weekly Indiana State Journal,

ONLY $1.00 PER YEAR.

NATURAL GAS SUPPLIES.

Tubing, Casing and Pipe, Corbidge, Big Irons, Drilling Tools, Brass Goods, Malleable, Galvanized and Cast-Iron Fittings. Complete line of House-Fittings for Natural Gas.

GEORGE A. RICHARDS, 77 South Illinois Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

NEW LINES FALL AND WINTER UNDERWEAR

In Medium and Heavy Weights, Natural Wools, Cashmeres, and the Holroyd & Lewis Knitting Co.'s Derby ribbed goods, at

MAJOR TAYLOR'S, 38 East Washington Street

SHIRTS MADE TO ORDER.

FRANK A. BLANCHARD, UNDERTAKER

66 North Pennsylvania St.

Telephone 411.

THE PROGRESS OF GREAT THINGS

THE GREAT CAMPAIGN AND THE GREAT CLOTHING STORE

In the clothing business, as in the campaign business, combination and concentration lead the way. The great concerns absorb the finest talent, buy things at first hand, make them at bottom cost, and take the trade. The best cutting talent in the two hemispheres to-day is in the employ of

Mammoth Factories Like THE WHEN

Not only this, but handling whole bolts of cloth where a single firm will handle one pattern it pays to do them well, and the $10 suit now has all the style and finish that was formerly given only to the finest fabrics. The best workmanship is employed, and the result is that a well-dressed man of to-day gets his clothes from establishments like THE WHEN.

IN ADDITION TO ALL

Besides this, a great establishment like this one absorbs every thing that comes in its line, like

RUBBER GOODS,

UMBRELLAS,

GLOVES,

WOOL SHIRTS,

SOCKS,

ALL FURNISHINGS

AND HATS.

HATS of Every Kind

THE WHEN

Mammoth Bargains This Week

CLOAKS! CLOAKS!

Plush Cloaks, Plush Wraps. Latest novelties in Newmarkets. Children's Cloaks all the newest style. See the prices.

SILKS! SILKS!

A large importation Irish Pencherd, very low, and at prices which will make them sell fast.

PLUSHES! PLUSHES!

We lead them all for low prices and Good Goods. Plush 55c, 69c, $1; worth 85c, $1 and $1.25 elsewhere.

DRESS GOODS! DRESS GOODS!

We have the finest line of Dress Goods in the State. All the latest weaves and newest shades. Prices always the lowest. Do not fail to examine our stock before you purchase.

MILLINERY DEPARTMENT.

Now opened with all the newest styles in Hats, Feathers, Tips and Ribbons. You should visit this department, which is in charge of Miss E. Bunting, one of the most artistic trimmers in the city.

SULLIVAN'S PHILADELPHIA STORE

6 & 8 West Washington Street.

A LARGE VARIETY OF PRESENTS

SUITABLE FOR ALL OCCASIONS.

Fine Cut-Glass, Fancy China, Bronzes, Mirrors, Clocks, Fine Leather Good s, Silverware and Albums. Beautiful Souvenirs of all kinds.

TOYS FOR THE CHILDREN.

CHARLES MAYER &amp; CO

29 and 31 West Washington Street.

CHICAGO ART GLASS CO.

MANUFACTURERS AND DEALERS IN STAINED, ORNAMENTAL AND BEVELED GLASS. Memorial Church Windows a Specialty. EDWARD SCHURMANN, No. 2 Odd-Fellows' Hall. Designs and Estimates Furnished Free on Application. State Agent, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

THE CLEVELAND-HILL FIGHT

Origin of a Quarrel that Promises to Influence the Result in November.

The New York Managing Democrats Greatly Excited Over the Widening Breach Between the President and the Governor.

Democratic National Committee Advises for Money for Campaign Uses.

President Grover Cleveland Said to Be Arranging to Sell His Red-Top Property. Preparatory to Retiring to Private Life.

NEW YORK POLITICS.

Origin of the Hill-Cleveland Quarrel—How Senator Everts Backs His Opinions. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

New York, Oct. 6.—Politicians enter the last month of the campaign with the Republicans elated and the Democrats depressed by the fact that President Cleveland and Governor Hill are out. The importance of New York State, the previous closeness of its vote, and the certainty that an order issued by Hill to his adherents to bolt Cleveland would be obeyed, combine to render the quarrel critically interesting. The situation, so far as the two men are concerned, is that Hill demands recognition and endorsement from Cleveland, and that Cleveland has thus far stubbornly refused to write or speak a word for Hill. The enmity between the President and the Governor began very soon after the former was elected Governor and the latter Lieutenant-governor of the State. Both were scheming politicians from the western end of New York, and jealousy characterized their intercourse from the first. But the open hostility between them broke out almost comically. The account of it comes from a member of the State Legislature familiar with the facts, and friendly to both men. Your correspondent has verified it by inquiry of five other witnesses. At that time the legislators at Albany, and particularly those from the cities, had a curious fad in amateur cookery. Nearly all were bachelors, or practically so through absence from their wives at home, and not a few couples, chambers in private houses, getting their meals here and there, wherever they chose. Young Roosevelt, Crosby and Robb, New York stars of high degree, set the example of cooking viands late at night in their rooms for the delectation of their acquaintances. Ministers grudgingly, fired by gas, were used with considerable liberality. Others followed suit, and everybody aimed to excel in novelty. One of the inventions deemed successful was the broiling of beefsteak in small cubes, which were served very hot and lightly seasoned on bits of toasted bread. There was nothing remarkable about this, but it was exceedingly appetizing by the fact that the cubes saw it done, and that, furthermore, they were provided with palatable beverages to wash the food down. Lieutenant-governor Hill, as presiding officer of the Senate, was brought into sociability with these amateur cooks, and he became one of them. One night he invited a party of half a dozen acquaintances to his rooms, and made ready to serve steak and toast there in the manner described. He made a special point of lavishing Governor Cleveland, sending a politely worded note to him; and getting no answer, he sent a messenger to inquire whether his Excellency would come. It happened that this messenger had other errands to do, and did not return until the midnight party was assembled in Hill's apartment.

"Did the Governor say that he would be here?" Hill asked the messenger, right before his guests.

"The Governor said he wouldn't come," was the reply.

"How did he say so?"

"He said you'd better learn how to handle a quail before you take up a griddle."

This coupling of a social insult with a reflection upon his skill as a presiding officer angered Hill, and never again did he have any intercourse with Cleveland except officially.

The managing members of the Democratic National and State committees are in a hubbub of unceasing excitement over the breach between Cleveland and Hill, but they are making it behind pretended efforts to reconcile the faction-fight between Tammany and the County Democracy in this city. It is conceded by all capable and honest-speaking experts that separate nominations for city offices by these two Democratic organizations could not harm the presidential ticket, and would rather tend to help it by calling out a full party-vote. For a fact, neither the Cleveland nor the Hill managers are in the least concerned about the local split. All the conferences held between men representing Cleveland and Hill have had no bearing on the affairs of the President and the Governor. Chairman Barnum, of the Democratic National committee, said positively to your correspondent: "Our committee will not touch the local political question at all. That is certain and sure."

Chairman Murphy, of the State committee, said: "The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

THE CLEVELAND-HILL FIGHT

Origin of a Quarrel that Promises to Influence the Result in November.

The New York Managing Democrats Greatly Excited Over the Widening Breach Between the President and the Governor.

Democratic National Committee Advises for Money for Campaign Uses.

President Grover Cleveland Said to Be Arranging to Sell His Red-Top Property. Preparatory to Retiring to Private Life.

NEW YORK POLITICS.

Origin of the Hill-Cleveland Quarrel—How Senator Everts Backs His Opinions. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

New York, Oct. 6.—Politicians enter the last month of the campaign with the Republicans elated and the Democrats depressed by the fact that President Cleveland and Governor Hill are out. The importance of New York State, the previous closeness of its vote, and the certainty that an order issued by Hill to his adherents to bolt Cleveland would be obeyed, combine to render the quarrel critically interesting. The situation, so far as the two men are concerned, is that Hill demands recognition and endorsement from Cleveland, and that Cleveland has thus far stubbornly refused to write or speak a word for Hill. The enmity between the President and the Governor began very soon after the former was elected Governor and the latter Lieutenant-governor of the State. Both were scheming politicians from the western end of New York, and jealousy characterized their intercourse from the first. But the open hostility between them broke out almost comically. The account of it comes from a member of the State Legislature familiar with the facts, and friendly to both men. Your correspondent has verified it by inquiry of five other witnesses. At that time the legislators at Albany, and particularly those from the cities, had a curious fad in amateur cookery. Nearly all were bachelors, or practically so through absence from their wives at home, and not a few couples, chambers in private houses, getting their meals here and there, wherever they chose. Young Roosevelt, Crosby and Robb, New York stars of high degree, set the example of cooking viands late at night in their rooms for the delectation of their acquaintances. Ministers grudgingly, fired by gas, were used with considerable liberality. Others followed suit, and everybody aimed to excel in novelty. One of the inventions deemed successful was the broiling of beefsteak in small cubes, which were served very hot and lightly seasoned on bits of toasted bread. There was nothing remarkable about this, but it was exceedingly appetizing by the fact that the cubes saw it done, and that, furthermore, they were provided with palatable beverages to wash the food down. Lieutenant-governor Hill, as presiding officer of the Senate, was brought into sociability with these amateur cooks, and he became one of them. One night he invited a party of half a dozen acquaintances to his rooms, and made ready to serve steak and toast there in the manner described. He made a special point of lavishing Governor Cleveland, sending a politely worded note to him; and getting no answer, he sent a messenger to inquire whether his Excellency would come. It happened that this messenger had other errands to do, and did not return until the midnight party was assembled in Hill's apartment.

"Did the Governor say that he would be here?" Hill asked the messenger, right before his guests.

"The Governor said he wouldn't come," was the reply.

"How did he say so?"

"He said you'd better learn how to handle a quail before you take up a griddle."

This coupling of a social insult with a reflection upon his skill as a presiding officer angered Hill, and never again did he have any intercourse with Cleveland except officially.

The managing members of the Democratic National and State committees are in a hubbub of unceasing excitement over the breach between Cleveland and Hill, but they are making it behind pretended efforts to reconcile the faction-fight between Tammany and the County Democracy in this city. It is conceded by all capable and honest-speaking experts that separate nominations for city offices by these two Democratic organizations could not harm the presidential ticket, and would rather tend to help it by calling out a full party-vote. For a fact, neither the Cleveland nor the Hill managers are in the least concerned about the local split. All the conferences held between men representing Cleveland and Hill have had no bearing on the affairs of the President and the Governor. Chairman Barnum, of the Democratic National committee, said positively to your correspondent: "Our committee will not touch the local political question at all. That is certain and sure."

Chairman Murphy, of the State committee, said: "The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."

"The New York city Democrats are quite capable of tending to their own affairs. They have not asked this committee to interfere, and we have no notion of offering to do so."